LOST WORKED BY CHAMPIONS

Were Beaten by the Y. M. I. McCov, Corbett and Fitzsimmons Think Out Ruses to Defeat Opponents.

> There are tricks in all trades, but in pugilism the opportunities to introduce all sorts of ruses are many. While some of the tricks brought into play may not seem legitimate to serious-minded persons, they are, nevertheless, effective. Boxers of the present day are craftier and more intelligent than those of two decades ago. They have made the business a study and are always alert to anything new to further their success. As soon as any one takes up pugilism for a livelihood his trainer or fighter is quick to learn he will rapidly realize the efficacy of these tricks and utilize them at the earliest chance. Then if he has any ideas of his own he will improve on them to the advantage of himself and probable detriment of his opponent. Probably no scrapper before the public to-day is more fertile in the way of tricks than is Kid McCoy. When McCoy was active in ring affairs he was ever scheming and planning how to get the better of an opponent in battle. His methods were original and have been copied by other fighters with success. Anybody who has been present at a fight in which McCoy was one of the principals has noticed that the first thing that the Kid did was to walk around the ring a few times apparently testing the floor to see if it was defective some way. Of course this procedure is considered proper, but McCoy's real idea was to study his rival, at the same time planning how he would fight him. Another one of McCoy's favorite tricks was to make his face appear blanched as he sat in his chair awaiting the beginning of the mill. McCoy is naturally pale and slender, but on the night of an important encounter his face was of a ghastly pallor. His evident idea was to convey the impression among some of those who had made up their minds to back him that he was not in the best condition. McCoy did this by smearing his face with powder in his dressing room. Of course, McCoy's poor looks caused the odds to change, invariably in favor of his rival. Then usually there would be a concerted rush on the part of his intimate friends and admirers to put their money on him, and before the fight commenced McCoy would be preferred in the kins, 2. M'COY'S BANDAGES. McCoy used to indulge in another trick before engaging in a fight. This was regarding his hands. He always soaked his bandages in some solution that was largely alcohol and that evaporated rapidly. It had some sort of gum in it and the bandages generally dried quickly, once his a couple of rounds he had a regular armor casing on his knuckles. This enhanced his punching powers and protected his hands. Bob Fitzsimmons is what one would call a foxy and shrewd fighter. Fitz has introduced a number of clever wrinkles, but his favorite deception is to feign grogginess. In doing this the Cornishman has won a number of fights, because it invariably misled his opponent into leaving an opening which gave Fitz a chance to land a knockout blow. Some fighters often try to arouse the ire of each other by hurling epithets while in the ring. Charley Mitchell did this to Jim Corbett when they fought at Jacksonville for the heavyweight championship of the world in 1894. Previous to the match Mitchell and Corbett had been bitter enemies. When Corbett was matched to meet John L. Sullivan Mitchell and Corbett got into a row at a Bowery theater. The Englishman did all he could to make Corbett angry, but the ex-champion wisely nursed his feelings and allowed better counsel to prevail Mitchell after that thought that Corbett was a coward, and wnenever he got the chance, either personally or through the medium of the newspapers, he would say uncouth things about the Californian. Mitchell seemed to be vindictive, and kept hounding Corbett until they were finally Corbett is of a nervous temperament and impetuous. Mitchell knew this, and during the progress of the fight the Englishman began by calling his opponent vile names.

It was simply a trick of Mitchell's to get Corbett to lose his head. This ruse succeeded admirably, and Corbett became as mad as a March hare. He sailed into Mitchell, lashing him relentlessly, until he finally knocked the foreigner down. While Mitchell was on the floor, trying to get up, Corbett shouted: "I got you just where I want you, you Mitchell mumbled something which flurried Corbett to such an extent that he apparently struck Mitchell while down. The blow was delivered so quickly that the referee did not know whether it was a Five Thousand Spectators Assembled at Long Island City to Watch Champion.

NEW YORK, June 5.-More than 5,000 persons assembled at Celtic Park, Long Island City, to-day to greet Thomas F. Kiely, champion all-round athlete of Great Britain and Ireland, who made his first public appearance in this country at the Kickham's A. C. track and field games to-

He is entered for the all-round championship of the A. A. U. during the first week in July at St. Louis, but none of his performances to-day gave any idea of his prowess as an athlete, as he was fully seven pounds below his normal weight and in very poor condition. He was beaten in the high hurdle handicap at 100 yards, but only by inches, the winner, J. J. McLoughlin, of the New West Side A. C., of this city, being in receipt of five yards from the Irish champion.

In throwing the sixteen-pound hammer, the wire handle broke, and when it was mended it was six inches shorter than the regulation length of three feet. Notwithstanding this drawback, Kiely made a distance of 143 feet 4 inches.

JONES IS AGAIN IN THE PUBLIC EYE

CHICAGO, June 5 .- The announcement of the appointment of Fielder Jones as manager of the Chicago American League baseball team in place of James Callahan, who has resigned the managerial duties, was made to-day by President Comiskey. Jones will take charge of the team to-morrow. There will be no changes in the personnel of the team on account of the new management, Callahan remaining the regular second baseman. The change in managers was made at Callahan's suggestion, as he believed better results would be secured for the team if he renounced the responsibilities of manager and attended strictly to the work of playing his position.
